Abstract

While other Dravidian languages other than Tamil are proud of their relationship with northernwords, such a situation does not exists in Tamil. It is noteworthy that records of foreign words were included in the Etymology section during the Tholkappiyam period.Thus,it can be seen that Tholkappiyam has formulated a systematic Tamil characteristic of using foreign words as much as possible according to the Tamil phonetic system when dealing with foreign words. These are the same ones that were later handled in the Nannul as well as in the form of Thalpavam and Tatsavam. It is noteworthy that grammarians included this in their books in order to appreciate the unique features of Tamil. This article is designed to examine how the impact of the departmental vocabulary creation committee in later years also gave to the movement called Tanithamizh.
